What were the major political stories of 2010, and what are we likely to see play out in 2011 as Republican legislators take control of the General Assembly and the major political parties start to gear up for 2012? Barlow Herget of stategovernmentradio.com and Becki Gray of the John Locke Foundation join host Donna Martinez to discuss Mike Easley, Elizabeth Edwards, the GOP's big midterm win, redistricting, and the relationship between the GOP and Gov. Perdue. Then stategovernmentradio.com's Josh Ellis reports on the controversy over the GOP's push to require a photo ID for voting. State senators David Rouzer (R-Johnston) and Ellie Kinnaird (D-Orange) weigh in. Martinez also provides an update on the week's big political stories, including the funeral of a former North Carolina First Lady and the prison term that has begun for a former North Carolina sheriff.
