RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - For the 45th year, North Carolina college students will get a taste of the real world when they spend 10 weeks as state government summer interns. They will be paid $8.25 per hour.

The Department of Administration's Youth Advocacy and Involvement Office oversees the program that involves college, graduate, and law school students.

The 88 represent 36 counties, 25 public and private colleges/universities, law schools and community colleges, and more than 56 different majors ranging from accounting to zoology.

A full list of the 2015 summer internships can be found on the Youth Advocacy website.
