

{audio}files/preroll.mp3;files/Shows/2011/061011_Weekly_News_Review.mp3{/audio}

Patrick Gannon of the Wilmington Star-News and Josh Ellis of SGRToday.com join host Barlow Herget to review Gov. Beverly Perdue's role as Hamlet in her "to veto or not to veto" drama on the legislative budget bill. The panel also examines why the state cannot compensate victims of its infamous eugenics program. Don't go away, there's more. On John Edwards' refusal to plea bargain. On the controversial package of bills changing state voting laws. And, groan, more on groins. Should there be more groins on the coast and who should pay for them? Hear it all on the Weekly News Review.